AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS
H. H. EDDY, Solicitor of PATENTS (Late Agent of U. S. Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837.)
No. 76 STATE, OPPOSITE LIBRARY ST.

of twenty years, continues to secure Pa-

Britain, France and other foreign countries.

liberal terms, and with despatch. Researches are made into American or Foreign works, to determine the validity or utility of Patents or inventions, and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Curied of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.

This Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions, unsurpassed by any other in the country. The testimonials below give proof that none is MORE successful AT THE PATENT OFFICE AND THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional services so moderate.
The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents. These besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe, render him able, beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining patents.
All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a patent, and the usual great delay there are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practical men with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHAS. MASON, "Com. Inventor of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and successful consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMOND BURKE, "Late Com. Inventor of Patents."
Boston, February 8, 1859.
"Mr. R. P. Eddy has secured for me THIR-TEEN applications on all but one of which patents have been granted, and the one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
JOHN TAGGART.
From Sept. 17th, 1857, to June 17th, 1858,
the subscriber, in course of his large practice, THIRTY APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided in his favor, by the Commissioners of Patents.

The Daily News.

It was the evening of the ball. Merrier never seen, than those in Mr. Carlton's parlor, on the evening of the leap year ball. A gay group of young people was collected near the hostess, who was the brightest reveler there. Lawrence watched her from his corner, where he stood toying with some ornament upon the mantelpiece. Harry was, as usual in such scenes, close behind her.

"Miss Carlton," said Mr. Harding, one of the group around Madge, "there is one condition in your invitation not complied with."

"Indeed! Rebellion in this camp must be put down! What is it?"

"The ladies do not make love to us!"

"No, they do not," echoed several of the gentlemen.

"Shocking! Do they want an example?" Mr. Harding, will you take my arm for a promenade?"

Mr. Harding looked down from his six foot height to the tiny little witch beside him, and then offered his arm.

"No, take mine! Mr. Harding!" a sigh.

"Miss Carlton, are you ill?"

"No," another sigh. "Not ill when you smile upon me!" Everybody laughed at Madge's pretended love-making.

"Ladies!" said Madge, "take your partners for the first quadrille."

There was plenty of blushing and some pointing, as one or two of the most fascinating beaux plucked prior engagements on a third or fourth invitation from some fair ones. Who would Madge choose? Harry of course! Lawrence was watching her little figure flitting from guest to guest, finding places for dancers, and with merry grace putting bashful folks at ease, introducing couples, prompting timid girls, carrying smiles everywhere, leaving a streak of sunshine wherever she went. She stood before him. The smile died out, and she blushed crimson.

"Mr. Hayes, shall I have the pleasure of dancing the first quadrille with you?" Lawrence bowed, offered his arm, and led her to a place. He thought.

"This is her duty-dance. She knows I am grave, and would not win the admiration of the gay beauties here, so her kind heart prompted her to dance once with me."

Harry was Madge's next partner; then other guests were invited; then Lawrence again; then again three times, but others came between, and Lawrence sighed as he noticed how gay and chatty she was with others, how timid, quiet, and reserved with him.

The evening sped on; it was quite late, and part of the guests had taken their departure. Some, however, yet lingered, dancing in the large parlor. In a little library on the same floor as the ball room, Lawrence was sitting alone, when a fairy-like figure stood before him.

"Truant," said Madge, "what are you doing here?"

"Have you missed me?" There was a deep thrill in his heart, a tremor in his voice.

"Oh!" said Madge, gayly, "you wish to remind me of my omission. I have danced with you, handed you ices, sent you a bouquet, but I have not made love to you. Shall I begin?"

There was a deep silence. The merry words she had used to many of her guests faded now. Her eyes were fixed upon her sorrowfully, lovingly. She softly kept up close to him, saying in a low voice.

"Lawrence!"

He started back.

"No! do not trifles with me! do not make a jest of my love! My love! Oh! Madge, do not tempt me to—"

A strong man was Lawrence, but a good shaking sob interrupted him.

Madge's low, soft voice stole in on his heart.

"Do you love me, Lawrence?"

"Love you! Madge! Madge, I have loved you for seven years better than my life!"

She still crept closer to him till her bright head was pillowed on his broad chest.

"Was it still a jest, a girlish freak?"

"Lawrence! Lawrence!"

"It was leap year, and the nestled close to him, as, darning his fate, he pointed out the full flood of his love in strong, burning words, and the merry heart was bound to his, the tiny form was clasped close in his arms, and the words of love were echoed at the ball given in LEAP YEAR.

The Daily News.

Tuesday Morning, May 1, 1860.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1860.
SALMON P. CHASE, OF OHIO.

Subject to the decision of the National Convention.

LOCAL ITEMS.

GRANDFATHER OF LOBSTERS.—We saw, yesterday, in the possession, or, to be more literal, in the arms of Mr. Andrew Bryer, a real monster of a lobster. The great fish weighed the large amount of 9 3/4 pounds; he measured from body to the end of claw, two feet, and the claw itself measured 17 1/2 inches long by 6 inches wide. This fish was caught by Mr. John Swan.

The Ferry will stop at East Greenwich on her way to and from Providence, on Thursday next, May 3d, to accommodate all who may wish to attend the Friend's Quarterly Meeting, or to spend the day with their friends, in that beautiful town.

The Charleston Convention.

A DARK AND TROUBLED PROSPECT.

RUPTURE ON THE PLATFORM.

A Secession Threatened.

CHARLESTON, Sunday, April 29.

A split in the Convention is inevitable, as the platform will be rejected by a decided vote, and the South will not compromise on less. Yancey and others claim that they already conceded more than was intended. The States intending to withdraw are Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina. Douglas men contend that portions of these delegations will remain, thus impairing the effect of the secession.

This movement is to be made on calculation with a view of running Douglas north, and probably Davis south, throwing the election into the House, and failing to carry this out, the Southern States which are tied will endeavor to devote the election of Vice President on the Senate, and thus carry off the prize. That portion of the South in the Convention which favors disunion will readily join, though not connected with the scheme. Fernando Wood urged this game upon the Southern delegation before his departure.

The vote of Iowa, divided yesterday, will, it is said, be a unit to-morrow on the platform in favor of the minority report. Massachusetts is divided. Maine, heretofore divided, will vote as a unit against the Butler proposition. Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, New York, and the North-West, will do the same. This will bring the vote directly between the majority and the Douglas (minority) platform, the latter of which will probably be adopted by five or six majority. The Southern men prefer the Butler proposition to the minority report.

The Douglas vote on the first ballot for President, is estimated at from 145 to 150, and will, perhaps, never much exceed that. Forayth, of the Mobile Register, who is here, says he will be nominated on the first ballot.

There is a deep plot to get the nomination for Horatio Seymour, and there are men here engaged in it from several States, professional President-makers, who made Pierce, and helped make Buchanan. Their plan, which was settled in New York before they left, is to cast the vote of New York delegation for one Southern candidate after another, without intending to nominate, till they have gained the good will of all the Southern delegations, when they will then expect them to come to them and ask who is their man, when the answer will be Horatio Seymour.

The Douglas leaders claim ten of the votes which were cast for the majority report of the platform committee. If this is correct, the first ballot will give 180 votes in favor of Douglas, including Craig of Missouri, Dick of North Carolina, and others from Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia. That the Douglas men feel strong is evident from the fact that they disclaimed modifying in the slightest degree certain expressions in the judiciary plank.

There is a large outside delegation from five extreme States favoring Douglas, who pledge themselves to support him if nominated.

It was discovered to-day that Douglas has eleven friends in the Georgia delegation, whose votes are tied down by the unit vote New York has voted with the Northwest.

Advices from north, west and east say, yield all that you possibly can, but secure the nomination of Douglas without fail. Advices from the south say, yield nothing; stand by your extreme platform, on which we will be beaten, rather than surrender.

The Boston Bee says, the city of Worcester has set the example—the first, we believe, hereabouts—of drawing colored men upon the jury.

WHO IS DEAD?

VILLAGE AND CITY.

BY JOHN A. WILLIS.

VILLAGE.

Tolling solemnly, and slow,
Swings the little village bell,
While the pause the pressure-by,
Saddened by the knell!

Saddened by the knell!
Praying for the spirit dead—
Wails he morn'g, with a sigh,
"Who is dead?"

Treading solemnly, and slow,
Comes the little village throng,
Who, with Pastor at their head,
Bear the corpse along!

Whilist the children cease their play—
"Drawing nearer, half in dread—Wondering, as it passeth on,
"Who is dead?"

And the busy workmen cease—
Gathering round, the windows round—
Whilist their upraised hammers all Fall without a sound!

"Tis the coffin of a child—
God, rest light its little head!
God, preserve our little ones!
"Who is dead?"

Broken is the number, now,
All had learned to think complete!
One familiar face is gone,
Now, from church and street!

And the busy querry runs,
Till, before the day is sped,
Even the smallest child could tell you,
"Who is dead?"

CITY.

Tolling solemnly, and slow,
Swings the city's solemn bell,
But the passer hurried by,
Heeding, hearing not the knell!

Heading, hearing not the knell—
To some busy purpose red—
Never finding time to ask,
"Who is dead?"

Now, with heaves and nodding plumes,
And long escort to the grave,
Death comes rattling down the street—
Life goes up the busy pave!

Charles faces, deathly pale,
No one in the throng said,
As the long procession passed them,
"Who is dead?"

Labor has no time to lose—
Nolay wheels still whir away!
Death's a common thing, which goes
By the windows every day!

From the thronged and busy pavements,
No familiar face is fled—
Not one, even in a thousand,
Knows who's dead!

OPEN THE FEW DOOR.—It is told an individual, now advanced in life, and distinguished both in the political and religious world; then when he first came up to London, to study for the bar, he casually (as men speak) entered St. John's chapel one Sunday evening. After standing for a long while in the aisle, and failing to get a seat, he felt vexed and chafed, and was retreating. One of the settled congregation, however, saw him going, followed him to the outer door, brought him back, and made room for him in the pew. The sermon that he then heard was instrumental to his conversion, and he walked from thenceforth in the way that leadeth to everlasting life. The incident is not only encouraging to ministers, but instructive to pew-holders. The opening of a door may lead to the salvation of a soul!—Batemans.

Mr. N. P. Willis has taken a census of the "stylish men" of New York, and finds that they number three hundred or so, probably less than that figure. He further discovers that the "men of style" have wholly forsaken Broadway, and now air their manners on horseback in the Central Park. In view of the growing passion for equestrian exercises, he recommends that when country gentlemen invite a city friend to visit them, they shall also request the pleasure of the company of the friend's horse, by way of showing "stable and table hospitality"—a new method of preserving the equine imity of a moral household.

An Englishman dining in a Chinese village was greatly enjoying a savory dish, and would have expressed his pleasure to the waiter, who, however, understood nothing of English, nor could our friend utter a word of Chinese. The smacking of lips indicated satisfaction; and then came the question, ingeniously put. Pointing at a portion of meat in the dish, and which he supposed to be duck, the Englishman with an inquiring look said, "Quack, quack, quack?" The waiter, gravely shaking his head, as much as to say "No," replied, "Bow, wow, wow!"

In the Bank of England, no fewer than sixty folio volumes, or ledgers, are daily filled with writing in keeping the accounts! To produce these sixty volumes, the paper having been previously manufactured elsewhere, eight men, three steam presses, and two hand presses, are continually kept going within the bank. In the copertate printing department, twenty-eight thousand bank notes are thrown off daily; and so accurately is the number indicated by machinery, that to perjoin a single note, without detection, is an impossibility.

Last Tuesday, a little child of Mr. Sneller's, who lives in Germantown, Ohio, got possession of an old pistol and snapped it several times, and said in a playful manner, "shoot me, mother." Mrs. Sneller took the pistol and pulled the trigger, exploding the cap and sending a ball through the child's head, killing the child instantly. The pistol had not been fired for more than a year, and was supposed not to be loaded.

In Hayti, in 1791, two negroes, Vincent Coe and Jean Baptiste Chavanne, were broken at the wheel, and then left to die on the public road, for having made an attempt to free the slaves in Hayti. A proposition is now on foot to erect a monument to the spot where these men were thus put to torture and death.

The jail in Stratford, Canada West, has been for some time, and is still, without a tenant. This remarkable decline in the amount of crimes is said to be due to the indefatigable efforts on the part of the authorities for the suppression of the sale of intoxicating liquors.

There is a young woman living in Alstead, N. H., who weighs over 700 pounds, and it takes about twenty yards of calico, for a dress.

There are still snow banks eight feet deep on the mountains in Washington, Senapee and Goshen, N. H. They are found on the southeast side of the summits, where the heavy drifts were lodged by the north-west winds of the winter.

A miller in Brown county, having missed some flour, put arsenic in another lot in order to find out where it went. The result was, that a family of 12 persons, named Story, were poisoned, the mother of the family having stolen it.
